VI. Teaching Contributions

A. Representative Courses Taught:

(i) BBA Consumer and Buyer Behavior (MKT 3596)

This is the required writing (W) core course for all BBA marketing majors. The focus is on concepts and practices in Consumer Behavior with relation to strategy. I have redesigned the course by incorporating Project-Based, Contextual, and Collaborating Learning in requiring, assessing, and supervising student-teams to develop a Brand Revival Plan for a Real-Life Company as their term project. SFF scores and written comments consistently indicate a high level of satisfaction.

(ii) MBA Consumer Behavior (MKT 5101)

This is the required course for all MBA marketing students. I redesigned the course content to include more practicum and case studies. SFF scores and written comments were consistently highly positive.

(iii) Executive MBA Marketing Strategy (TUJ-Tokyo) (2001-2006)

I was among a select set of Fox Business School Faculty who were sent to Temple University-Japan to teach in the flagship EMBA Program at Tokyo that enjoys a premier reputation in Asia. I taught in the program till the school discontinued sending a marketing faculty from Philadelphia. This was the core marketing course within the Executive-MBA program. Students were executives from large U.S. multinationals and Japanese firms. The course was highly intensive and was run over five weeks. My evaluations were consistently high and consequently I was invited to teach over a period of 6 years.

(iv) MBA Globalization and Technology (European Business Schools)

This short course/workshop provides the understanding of the aspects of marketing and business in the globalized and digital economy. Those enrolled in this course learn how global business has changed in today's innovation-oriented and technology-based world. Issues such as brand management and social media are covered in the sessions. I designed this course from scratch and have offered it on an invitational basis at various European business school.

Teaching and Student Development Highlights:

- (i) Consistently described by students as among the best professors in the BBA, MBA and Executive-MBA programs.
- (ii) Frequently seen comments are: "Best course at Temple", "Learned a lot", "Professor gave new insights", "Professor motivated me about Marketing", etc.
- (iii) Four times awarded for Outstanding Teaching and Student Development (1998, 1999, 2001, 2011).
- (iv) Sat on the Dissertation Committees of Neha Singh (Ph.D. STHM, 2007) and Shae Taylor (DBA Fox, 2019).
- (v) Mentored and Supervised Fox MBA Students (Harsh Mishra and James Paek) on their project papers.
- (vi) Mentored and Supervised Fox BBA and BBA Honors Students (Jing Shi, Karin Annerhed, Aashna Sangvi, Sarika Manavalan, Kathryn-Anne Monzo, Chris Konowal, and Kunal Duggal).
